Farm Manager/Intern Position
Available in Middle Georgia

Forest Grove Farm is seeking a person or a couple to run a sustainable farm in middle Georgia. An infrastructure is established for raising grass-fed meat sheep and a variety of vegetables and fruits. Organic and pasture-raised methods are followed. Sheep paddocks encompass about 14 acres, and a deer-fence protects 2.75 acres for growing produce. The present system is functional and there is potential for improvement and expansion. Attendance at two farmers markets is ongoing. A Georgia mobile meat license and state-approved labels for lamb and mutton are currently active.

- Different arrangements can be negotiated, depending on the experience of the applicant: such as, an intern with a stipend, or a manager who will implement all operations and will keep all profits incurred. In the manager arrangement, managers will be responsible for operational expenses such as for seed, fertilizer, feed, and meat processing, and will keep all the profits they make.
- A trial period will be set to determine whether both the manager and landowner want to continue the arrangement.
- The owner and current proprietor will provide a small house adjacent to the farm, including utilities.
- In addition there is a one-room WWOOFer-style quarters that can be occupied by additional farm help. Manager(s) will be responsible to procure and supervise extra help. Forest Grove Farm currently can keep two full-time staff busy, and if operations were expanded, would require more help.

_The farm manager(s) of Forest Grove Farm will have the opportunity to experience sustainable farming for real and to join a small, but passionate sustainable-farming movement in middle Georgia._

The owner will serve as a guide and mentor for an initial period and as needed, but will not micromanage. She needs to withdraw from the daily work of farming in order to pursue other important projects.
